Conservatives for Whitman

Dear Delegate:

We all know that California's economy is struggling. We now face one of the highest unemployment rates in the country and businesses are leaving for neighboring states with lower costs.

But there is a path forward. Meg Whitman is the kind of leader California needs to overcome its historic challenges. She is the only candidate with the proven leadership experience and clear vision to lead our state during these challenging times.

Her business experience spans 30 years, including positions at Procter & Gamble, Hasbro and Disney. Under her leadership as CEO, eBay grew from 30 employees and $4.7 million in revenue to more than 15,000 employees and nearly $8 billion in revenue.

Meg helped create thousands of jobs in California and tens of thousands of small businesses around the world. She managed large, complex budgets and was accountable for making the bottom line.

Her chief goal as governor is to help the private sector create two million jobs by 2015. She will cut taxes and reduce the regulatory burden so that businesses have greater incentive to invest, expand and hire more workers.

Meg knows that Californians have a government they can no longer afford. As governor, she will stop Sacramento's out of control spending and evaluate every department and regulation to make certain California's government is lean and efficient.

Meg was the first candidate for governor who committed to placing a one-year moratorium on most AB 32 rules until their true economic impact could be assessed. It's the right approach. At a time of record unemployment, Meg knows that new regulations are wrong for these challenging times.

Meg would also issue a moratorium on all new regulations until the economy has begun a full recovery and a review of existing regulations has been completed to identify outdated and duplicative regulations.

Over, Please . . .
